2016 was the final year the Deutsche Bank was held at TPC Boston. Rory McIlroy handled business with a classy bunker shot on 18 in the final round to all but eliminate the small chance Paul Casey had of making a comeback. McIlroy finished the tournament at (-15) with a final round score of 66 while Casey who had the lead going into the final round shot a (+2) 73 and finished 2 strokes behind McIlroy in second place.
